Honorable William H. Alsup

1 Defendants WELLS FARGO & COMPANY, WELLS FARGO FUNDS
2 MANAGEMENT, LLC, WELLS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT INCORPORATED,
3 H.D. VEST MANAGEMENT SERVICES, WELLS FARGO FUNDS TRUST and 4 STEPHENS, INC. (collectively, the "Wells Fargo Defendants and Stephens") hereby 5 respond to the motion (Dkts. 11-13) filed by the "Wells Fargo Lead Plaintiff Group"
6 requesting the Court to (a) appoint a lead group of plaintiffs, (b) appoint a plaintiffs'
7 steering committee and (c) approve the lead plaintiff group's selection of lead counsel,
8 coordinating counsel, and liaison counsel.

9 The motion, addressed to selecting the "most adequate plaintiff" and to approving 10 counsel to represent a purported plaintiff class, does not request any relief against any 11 defendant. Accordingly, the Wells Fargo Defendants and Stephens take no position with 12 respect to the motion.

13 By not opposing this motion, the Wells Fargo Defendants and Stephens are not 14 indicating agreement with the statements contained in plaintiff's complaint and memoranda
15 about defendants' conduct; indeed, the Wells Fargo Defendants and Stephens strongly 16 disagree with these mischaracterizations of their conduct. The Wells Fargo Defendants and 17 Stephens reserve all their rights to object to defects in plaintiff's complaint, to object to the 18 proposed lead plaintiff group's adequacy as representatives of the purported class and to 19 oppose class certification. But none of those matters is before the Court now, so the Wells
20 Fargo Defendants and Stephens will not address them now.

CLASS ACTION (PSLRA)*DEFENDANTS' RESPONSE TO COURT'S QUESTIONS RE:
APPOINTMENT OF LEAD
PLAINTIFF AND LEAD COUNSEL

Date: February 23, 2006
 Time: 2:00 P.M.
 Ctrm: 9, 19th Floor
 Honorable William H. Alsup

1           I. INTRODUCTION.

2           At the case management conference held February 9, 2006, the Court indicated that
3 it wishes to appoint one plaintiff as lead plaintiff and have that lead plaintiff choose one law
4 firm as its counsel. Counsel for plaintiff, McDaniel Family Trust, expressed a concern that 5 defendants may interpose new or different defenses if only one lead plaintiff is chosen. The 6 Court, in response, suggested that it may pose questions to defense counsel regarding that 7 point and it gave all parties until February 16, 2006 to submit additional briefing regarding 8 the lead plaintiff motion (Dkts. 11-13, 26).

9           This is the response of all defendants ("Defendants") to the concerns raised by 10 plaintiff's counsel at the case management conference. In brief, Defendants submit that:

- 11         • The Court's concerns about having multiple lead plaintiffs and multiple law firms 12 representing the lead plaintiffs are well-founded.
13         • It is not Defendants' place, however, to comment on the bona fides of any particular 14 candidate to be lead plaintiff.
15         • Depending on who is chosen to be lead plaintiff, Defendants may be obliged to raise the 16 issue of standing (in the constitutional sense of whether there is an Article III "case or 17 controversy"). We shall comment on this below.
18         • It is also possible that the choice of lead plaintiff could affect other issues later in the 19 litigation—for example, issues that might be litigated on a motion to dismiss or a class 20 certification motion. At this stage of the case, however, it is impossible to say with any 21 assurance what that effect might be. Plaintiff has indicated that it intends to amend its 22 complaint, changing (among other things) its proposed class definitions and subclasses.
23 Without seeing that amended complaint, Defendants cannot say what defenses they 24 might raise or what might be the issues on class certification.

25           II. DISCUSSION.

26           A. One lead plaintiff, one plaintiff's counsel is a good concept.

27           Defendants agree with the concept of one plaintiff, one plaintiff's counsel. As the 28 case mentioned by the Court (In re BankAmerica Corp. Sec. Litig., 350 F.3d 747 (8th Cir.

1 2003)) shows, a “fractured lead plaintiff group that failed to speak with one voice” (id. at 2 750) (emphasis in original) can make it difficult to settle a case and multiply the costs
3 incurred by all parties.

4 Closer to home, the undersigned once suffered through seven days of settlement 5 approval hearings in a class action where five plaintiffs’ firms fell to quarrelling over the 6 merits of a settlement. See 7-Eleven Owners for Fair Franchising v. Southland Corp., 7 85 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1142-44, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777, 781-82 (2000). Hearings in the trial
8 court were spread over seven months. The ensuing appeal from approval of the settlement
9 took another two years, eight months. Enough said.

10 B. Issues of standing could arise and cannot be waived.

11 This is not the first class action challenging so-called “Shelf Space” issues in the 12 mutual fund industry. Over half a dozen such class actions have been filed in federal 13 district courts back east. In at least two of these class actions, issues of standing have 14 already been litigated. Thus, while we cannot know yet whether issues of standing will 15 arise here, we can at least sketch the basic principles.

16 Article III of the Constitution limits the jurisdiction of federal courts to “cases or 17 controversies.” As interpreted by the Supreme Court, this means that the plaintiff must 18 (1) have suffered injury (2) that is fairly traceable to the defendant’s unlawful conduct and 19 (3) is likely to be redressed by the requested relief. See, e.g., Lujan v. Defenders of 20 Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992). These are issues of constitutional dimension going 21 to the Court’s subject-matter jurisdiction. They cannot be waived. As the court said in one
22 “Shelf Space” class action, “Article III standing goes to the very heart of a court’s subject
23 matter jurisdiction. It determines whether the court has jurisdiction to resolve a dispute on 24 the merits.” In re Franklin Mut. Funds Fee Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 451, 460 (D.N.J. 2005)
25 (citing Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 498 (1975); ACLU-NJ v. Township of Wall, 246 F.3d 26 258, 261 (3d Cir. 2001)).

27 In In re Franklin, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 461-62, and in another class action before the 28 same judge, In re Lord Abbett Mutual Funds Fee Litigation, 385 F. Supp. 2d 471, 480

1 (D.N.J. 2005), the court held that Article III standing existed as long as the lead plaintiff
 2 had standing to bring at least one claim against each defendant. There, the actions were 3 brought against mutual fund families and their affiliates—fund advisers, fund distributors
 4 and fund directors. In Franklin, the court dismissed all claims against “all investment 5 adviser defendants, distributor defendants, and director defendants” with leave to amend.
 6 Franklin, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 462. In Lord Abbett, the court refused to dismiss any of the 7 defendants (“Lord Abbett, Lord Abbett Distributors LLC, the Directors and Trustees, and 8 the Partners”) because the named plaintiffs owned interests in seven Lord Abbett funds.
 9 Lord Abbett, 385 F. Supp. 2d at 478-80.

10 Standing must be assessed separately against each defendant because the lead
 11 plaintiff must have suffered injury in fact traceable to that defendant’s alleged misconduct.
 12 In re Franklin, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 460-62.

13 To have standing to sue the broker/dealers, for example, we think a plaintiff must 14 have dealt with them—that is, received advice from a broker/dealer and bought a fund as a 15 result of that advice. How otherwise would the plaintiff have any claim against that 16 broker/dealer? Similarly, to have standing to sue the fund advisers and distributors, we 17 think a plaintiff must have dealt with them. If the plaintiff never bought a mutual fund from 18 the fund family that the adviser advises, or the distributor distributes, how could that 19 plaintiff have any claim against that adviser or distributor?

20 Applying these principles, it would appear that the present plaintiff, McDaniel
 21 Family Trust, might not have standing as to all defendants. For example, it never purchased 22 or held any Proprietary Funds. Of the other proposed lead plaintiffs, some might have 23 similar problems and some might not. We are reluctant to say more without learning more 24 about them and seeing the amended complaint to which their names are to be attached.

25 C. It is too early to say whether the choice of lead plaintiff will affect merits 26 defenses or class certification.

27 As noted in the introduction, it certainly is possible that the choice of lead plaintiff
 28 will affect the availability of certain defenses and arguments other than standing. But

1 without knowing what the amended complaint will look like, we would only be speculating
2 if we hazarded a guess as to what defenses or arguments might be affected. Needless to 3 say, we are certainly not going to sign any blank checks by waiving defenses or arguments
4 in advance of seeing the amended complaint.

III. CONCLUSION.

6 Defendants have no objection to the Court selecting one lead plaintiff and one law
7 firm to represent the lead plaintiff. As a matter of constitutional law, however, Defendants
8 cannot waive any challenges that any of them may have to the standing of the plaintiff
9 chosen. And as a matter of prudence, Defendants do not waive any defenses they have to 10 the existing complaint or might have to an amended complaint that they have not yet seen,
11 or any arguments they might have relating to classes that have not yet been defined, or to a 12 class certification motion not yet made.

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANTS' MOTION
FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS

Defendants.

INTRODUCTION

In this securities-fraud action, defendants move for judgment on the pleadings as to certain counts of the complaint, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(c). Defendants contend that the undisputed facts establish that plaintiffs' claims arising under Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act of 1933 must fail as a matter of law. This order finds that plaintiffs' Section 12(a)(2) claims are barred by the statute of limitations or fail because plaintiffs have suffered no rescissory loss. Plaintiffs' claim under Section 15 of the 1933 Act must also fail. For the below-stated reasons, defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings is GRANTED.

STATEMENT

This action alleges that defendants, various Wells Fargo-affiliated companies in the mutual-fund trade, engaged in a hidden system of “revenue sharing” wherein fund sponsors made incentive payments to brokerage firms in exchange for increased visibility. The most incendiary allegation is that the payments came not from the sponsors’ own money but from the investors’ money — siphoned out of the common fund in the guise of sham fees. Two putative-class representatives are named as plaintiffs, Ronald Siemers and Forrest McKenna. The full procedural history of this action is set forth in an order dated March 9, 2007. See Siemers v. Wells Fargo & Co., No. C 05-04518 WHA, 2007 WL 760750, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 9, 2007).

Counts I and II of the third amended complaint assert claims against defendants Wells Fargo Investments, Wells Fargo Funds Trust, Wells Fargo Funds Distributor, and Stephens Incorporated, under Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act of 1933, 15 U.S.C. 77l(a)(2). Count III asserts a claim against Wells Fargo & Co. under Section 15 of the 1933 Act, 15 U.S.C. 77o. The instant motion is directed at Counts I, II, and III.

Defendants’ motion focuses on specific purchases and sales of Wells Fargo mutual funds by plaintiffs McKenna and Siemers. The operative complaint alleges the following purchases of Wells Fargo funds by McKenna and Siemers (Compl. Exhs. A, B):<sup>1</sup>

McKenna:

- The purchase of 191.84 shares of Wells Fargo Advantage Large Company Growth Fund on May 3, 2001.
- The purchase of 252.15 shares of Wells Fargo Advantage Small Cap Growth Fund on May 3, 2001.

Siemers:

- Purchases of Wells Fargo Diversified Equity Fund at various prices between July 14, 2000, and December 24, 2003.

- Three purchases of Wells Fargo Advantage Small Cap Growth Fund consisting of 620.018 shares on February 20, 2004 (at $11.08), 217.028 shares on February 20, 2004 (at $11.29), and 13.384 shares on December 15, 2004 (at $11.59).
- One purchase of Wells Fargo TR Montgomery Emerging Markets Focus Fund, consisting of 451.264 shares on February 23, 2004 (at $22.16).

6 Before the complaint was filed, Siemers sold all the shares he owned in both the 7 Diversified Equity Fund and the Emerging Markets Focus Fund. He sold his shares in the 8 Emerging Markets Fund on October 31, 2005, for $25.78 per share. He sold his shares in the 9 Diversified Equity Fund in two separate sales. On February 24, 2004, he sold 43.256 shares for 10 $40.02 per share, and on April 7, 2004, he sold 2.538 shares for $41.21 per share. He still owns 11 his shares in the Advantage Small Cap Growth Fund.

Defendants Wells Fargo Investments, Wells Fargo Fund Distributor, Wells Fargo Funds Trust, and Stephens move for judgment as to Counts I and II. Defendant Wells Fargo & Company moves for judgment as to Count III of the complaint. Plaintiffs concede that neither Siemers nor McKenna may plead a Section 12(a)(2) claim based on any purchase made before November 2, 2005. Thus only some of Siemers' purchases — and none of McKenna's — are at issue in this motion.

ANALYSIS

1. LEGAL STANDARD.

20        “After the pleadings are closed but within such time as not to delay the trial, any party 21 may move for judgment on the pleadings.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c). A motion for judgment on the 22 pleadings is evaluated according to virtually the same legal standard as a motion to dismiss
23 pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), in that the pleadings are construed in the light most favorable to the 24 non-moving party. See Brennan v. Concord EFS, Inc., 369 F. Supp. 2d 1127, 1130–31 (N.D.
25 Cal. 2005). “Judgment on the pleadings is proper when the moving party clearly establishes on 26 the face of the pleadings that no material issue of fact remains to be resolved and that it is

1 entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” See Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner and 2 Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1550 (9th Cir. 1990).

3 Although materials outside of the pleadings should not be considered, a court may 4 consider all materials properly submitted as part of the complaint, such as exhibits. See Hal
5 Roach Studios, 896 F.2d at 1555 n.19. Otherwise, if “matters outside the pleadings are 6 presented to and not excluded by the Court,” the motion must be treated as a 7 summary-judgment motion instead. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c).

8 The Court takes judicial notice of the Yahoo Finance quotes for the per share price of 9 the Wells Fargo Advantage Small Cap Growth Fund, filed concurrently with the instant motion.
10 See Ravens v. Iftikar, 174 F.R.D. 651, 661 (N.D. Cal. 1997). While generally consideration of 11 these judicially noticed facts would not convert the instant motion into a motion for summary
12 judgment, there are other facts that require consideration of this motion as one for summary
13 judgment. See In re Century 21-RE/MAX Real Estate Advertising Claims Litig., 882 F. Supp.
14 915, 921 (C.D. Cal. 1994). Specifically, this order also takes into account defendants’
15 calculation of Siemers’ profit from the sale of his shares. Although these calculations are not 16 disputed by plaintiffs in their opposition, the Court declines to take judicial notice of these facts 17 and will construe the instant motion, to that extent, as one for summary judgment.

18 Under Rule 56, summary judgment is proper where the evidence shows that “there is no
19 genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a 20 matter of law.” It is not the task of the district court to scour the record in search of a genuine
21 issue of triable fact. The nonmoving party has the burden of identifying with reasonable 22 particularity the evidence that precludes summary judgment. Keenan v. Allen, 91 F.3d 1275,
23 1279 (9th Cir. 1996). A genuine dispute as to a material fact exists if there is sufficient 24 evidence for a reasonable finder of fact to return a verdict for the nonmoving party. On 25 summary judgment, the “evidence of the non-movant is to be believed, and all justifiable 26 inferences are to be drawn in his favor.” Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248,

27

1 255 (1986). Absent such a factual showing, “the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a
2 matter of law.” Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986).

3 Defendants’ motion for judgment on the pleadings is limited to plaintiffs’ claims
4 alleging violations of Sections 12(a)(2) and 15 of the 1933 Act, the first three counts of the 5 complaint. Defendants first allege that certain transactions made before November 5, 2002, by 6 Siemers and McKenna are barred by the three-year statute of limitations, this action having 7 been initiated on November 4, 2005. As stated above, plaintiffs concede that “neither Plaintiff
8 intended to plead any [Section] 12(a)(2) claims in the Third Amended Complaint with regard to 9 purchases made more than three years before the filing of the Complaint” (Opp. 1). None of 10 McKenna’s purchases was within the three-year period, so he cannot plead a claim under the 11 1933 Act with respect to his purchases of the Wells Fargo funds. Plaintiffs also concede that 12 Siemers cannot plead a claim under the 1933 Act with respect to his purchases of Wells Fargo
13 funds before November 2002. All parties agree, however, that at least some of Siemers’
14 purchases of the Wells Fargo Small Cap Growth Fund, Wells Fargo Diversified Equity Fund,
15 and Wells Fargo TR Montgomery Emerging Markets Focus Fund occurred after November 16 2002 and are not time-barred.

17 2. SECTION 12(A)(2) CLAIMS.

18 Defendants’ principal argument is that as to the Wells Fargo funds Siemers purchased in 19 the three years preceding the filing of the complaint, he cannot sustain a Section 12(a)(2) claim
20 because he did not incur a loss. This argument has merit. This order recounts Siemers’ relevant 21 transactions during the class period.

22 Wells Fargo Diversified Equity Fund: Siemers made ten purchases at various times and 23 prices between November 15, 2002, and December 24, 2003. These purchases were all at 24 prices between $31.37 and $38.98. He sold all his shares in February and April 2004 at prices
25 ranging from $40.02 to $41.21 per share. Matching his purchases against the lowest sale price, 26 his profit was 19%.

27

1           Wells Fargo TR Montgomery Emerging Markets Focus Fund: Siemers made one
2 purchase, on February 23, 2004. He bought these shares at $22.16. He sold the shares at 3 $25.78 on November 2, 2005. He thus made a profit of 16%.

4           Wells Fargo Advantage Small Cap Growth Fund: Siemers made two purchases on 5 February 20, 2004, and one on December 15, 2004. He paid $9,755.12 for 850.43 shares, at 6 prices of $11.08, $11.29, and $11.59 per share. To date, he has not sold his shares in this fund.
7 On the day the action was filed, the per-share value was $12.57. The share price was valued
8 more recently on April 5, 2007, at $13.87.

9           A.       Siemers Has No Section 12(a)(2) Losses.

10          The parties agree that the remedies available under Section 12(a)(2) are limited. A 11 plaintiff may “recover the consideration paid for such security with interest thereon, less the 12 amount of any income received thereon, upon the tender of such security, or for damages if he 13 no longer owns the security.” 15 U.S.C. 77l(a)(2). The Supreme Court has explained that this 14 provision “prescribes the remedy of rescission except where the plaintiff no longer owns the 15 security.” Randall v. Loftsgaarden, 478 U.S. 647, 655 (1986). And “[e]ven in the latter
16 situation, we may assume that a rescissory measure of damages will be employed; the plaintiff 17 is entitled to a return of the consideration paid, reduced by the amount realized when he sold the 18 security and by any ‘income received’ on the security.” Id. at 655–56. Thus, the successful 19 plaintiff under Section 12(a)(2) may recover his or her “purchase price, or . . . damages not 20 exceeding such price.” Id. at 656 (quoting H.R. Rep. No. 85, 73d Cong., 1st Sess. 9 (1933)).

21          According to defendants, because Siemers profited on the fund purchases at issue, he 22 would not be entitled to any Section 12(a)(2) damages. The Ninth Circuit’s holding in In re
23 Broderbund /Learning Co. Securities Litigation, 294 F.3d 1201, 1202–03 (9th Cir. 2002),
24 provides guidance. In that decision, the plaintiff had acquired stock in The Learning Company 25 at a price of $17.6875 per share. The plaintiff disposed of his stock at a price of $33.45 per 26 TLC share in a stock-for-stock deal when TLC was acquired by Mattel. The plaintiff alleged 27 that certain misstatements by TLC had inflated the value of TLC stock when he purchased it.

1 He asserted claims under Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) of the 1933 Act. The Ninth Circuit affirmed
2 dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6), holding that the plaintiff had no damages as a matter of law:
3 “[W]hen he disposed of [the security], he did so for an amount greater than the purchase
4 price. . . . In the TLC transactions, he ‘has suffered no damages recoverable under § 12(2)’ of 5 the Act.” Id. at 1205 (quoting PPM AM, Inc. v. Marriott Corp., 853 F. Supp. 860, 876 (D. Md.
6 1994)). This order finds that pursuant to Broderbund, where, as here, the undisputed facts show
7 that plaintiff has profited from the transactions at issue, such allegations cannot constitute a 8 Section 12(a)(2) claim for damages. See Randall, 478 U.S. at 655–56 (“[T]he plaintiff is 9 entitled to a return of the consideration paid, reduced by the amount realized when he sold the 10 security and by any ‘income received’ on the security.”). The same is true for securities 11 currently held that could be sold at their present value for a profit.

12 Plaintiffs maintain, however, that Siemers did suffer a rescissory loss for the mutual 13 funds he sold. They contend that defendants neglected to include interest information, which is, 14 in plaintiffs’ view, necessary to calculate Section 12(a)(2) damages. Plaintiffs suggest that the 15 interest rate can only be set after resolving fact issues and that it is inappropriate to do so in a 16 motion for judgment on the pleadings. According to plaintiffs, Siemers can demonstrate 17 Section 12(a)(2) losses using an “appropriate” interest rate.

18 Plaintiffs are wrong that interest is necessary in a Section 12(a)(2) damages calculation.
19 In Section 12(a)(2) cases, “an award of prejudgment interest rests in the sound discretion of the 20 trial court.” Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. Milken, 17 F.3d 608, 615 (2d Cir. 1994).
21 Factors to be considered include: “(I) the need to fully compensate the wronged party for actual 22 damages suffered, (ii) considerations of the fairness and the relative equities of the award, 23 (iii) the remedial purpose of the statute involved, and/or (iv) such other general principles that 24 the court deems relevant.” Wickham Contracting Co., Inc. v. Local Union No. 3, Intern. Bhd., 25 955 F.2d 831, 833–34 (2d Cir. 1992); see also Milken, 17 F.3d at 615.

26 Based on the undisputed facts, consideration of the factors here weighs in favor of 27 denying an award of interest as a matter of law. Perhaps most importantly, the undisputed facts
28

1 demonstrate that interest is not needed to fully compensate Siemers for any alleged Section
2 12(a)(2) loss suffered. Over almost two years, Siemers made a 19% profit from his sale of 3 Wells Fargo Diversified Equity Fund shares. Over one and a half years, he made a 16% profit
4 from his sale of Wells Fargo TR Montgomery Emerging Markets Focus Fund. As other courts 5 have recognized, “if a plaintiff sells the securities at issue for an amount greater than the 6 plaintiff’s purchase price, then the plaintiff has suffered no damages recoverable under § 12(2).”
7 PPM AM., Inc., 853 F. Supp. at 876, cited with approval in Broderbund, 294 F.3d at 1205.

8 Furthermore, although he has not sold his shares in the Wells Fargo Advantage Small 9 Cap Growth Fund, he could have made a 10% profit if he had sold the fund on the day the 10 action commenced, or a 21% profit if he sold recently, on April 5, 2007. Because plaintiff still 11 holds these shares, the proper remedy would be rescission; he would have to tender back his 12 interest and receive his purchase price. See Randall, 478 U.S. at 655–56. But he would not be 13 entitled to any award because rescission would result in him receiving less than the actual value
14 of the shares. See Merzin v. Provident Fin. Group, Inc., 311 F. Supp. 2d 674, 684 (S.D. Ohio
15 2004) (“Because in this case rescission would clearly result in a loss for Plaintiffs, such claim 16 should be and is dismissed.”).

17 For all of the relevant investments, Siemers’ gain is at least as great as conventional 18 interest over the periods in question, or so close thereto as to be fair without a disproportionate
19 waste of resources in trying to put a finer point on it. This order holds that prejudgment interest
20 is adequately compensated for in the profits already earned on the investments. Accordingly, 21 Counts I and II must fail. In this regard, the Second Circuit has aptly held: “We realize that 22 Congress specifically provided in § 12(2) for an award of interest. But we do not read § 12(2)
23 as insisting upon any set rate of interest. . . . The net result of these computations is that 24 appellants have not suffered compensable damages under § 12(2). Allowing them to maintain a 25 cause of action under such circumstances would constitute a waste of judicial resources and a 26 thwarting of Congress’ aim in enacting § 12(2).” Milken, 17 F.3d at 616. The lack of a 27
28

1 cognizable loss under Section 12(a)(2) means that judgment must be entered on the Section
2 12(a)(2) claims in defendants' favor.

3           B. Plaintiffs' Proposed Interest Calculation Is Flawed.

4           Even if the Court were to find interest available, plaintiffs' theory of "interest" to 5 demonstrate a "loss" lacks merit. Plaintiffs propose a novel way to calculate interest. Plaintiffs 6 "believe that one appropriate way to set the interest rate would be to see what return Mr.
7 Siemers would have earned had he invested in non-Wells Fargo mutual funds in the same 8 market segment" (Opp. 7). Plaintiffs suggest comparing Siemers' rate of return relative to 9 industry "benchmark" funds identified by industry analysts at Morningstar and Yahoo.
10 According to the calculations offered by plaintiffs, if Siemers had invested in the benchmark
11 funds rather than the Wells Fargo funds, his return rate would have been higher. Under this 12 theory, he has incurred a "loss" and is entitled to the "interest" he could have earned through a 13 hypothetical investment (id. at 7–9).<sup>2</sup>

14           This proposed theory of "interest" is rejected. Plaintiffs cite no decision actually 15 applying this approach in a Section 12 case. This theory is not interest at all. It is capital gain 16 from competing equity investments.

17           The decision on which plaintiffs rely, Johns Hopkins University v. Hutton, 297 F. Supp.
18 1165, 1229–30 (D. Md. 1968), is inapposite. Johns Hopkins held that "[i]n order to place [the 19 plaintiff] in the position it would have been in were it not for the violations by [the defendant]
20 of the standards of Section 12, an examination is required to determine what Hopkins could 21 reasonably have been expected to earn by a similar type of investment." In the circumstances of 22 that decision, however, the court considered the rate of return the plaintiff had been promised
23 before making the investment. The district court found that the promised rate was above the

26           

---

<sup>2</sup> Plaintiffs expressly "do not waive their right to assert that the interest should be set in other ways," 27 such as by reference to a fixed rate or a treasury-bill rate (Opp. 7). They suggest the theory discussed above as a possible way to calculate interest and to demonstrate that Siemers has incurred a loss.

prime rate and that accordingly, it was appropriate to award the plaintiff what it had expected to earn according to the defendants' promise.

Even if Johns Hopkins is correct that a plaintiff's reasonable expectation can be considered in calculating interest in Section 12(a)(2), plaintiffs do not argue that Siemers could reasonably expect to receive a particular rate of return. Generally, “[i]n a rescission action the proper measure is the amount lost rather than value of the bargain.” Andrews v. Blue, 489 F.2d 367, 376 (10th Cir. 1973). There being no Section 12(a)(2) decision supporting the theory that a fictitious investment can be used to create a loss for a plaintiff who has profited from the investment at issue, plaintiffs' theory fails.

10 || 3. SECTION 15 CLAIM.

Count III, alleging control-person liability under Section 15, only survives this motion if the underlying claims brought under Section 12(a)(2), Counts I and II, survive. Because the Section 12(a)(2) claims do not survive, judgment on the Section 15 claim must be entered in Wells Fargo & Company's favor. See 15 U.S.C. 77o; Durham v. Kelly, 810 F.2d 1500, 1503–04 (9th Cir. 1987); Payne v. Fidelity Homes of Am., Inc., 437 F. Supp. 656, 658 (D.C. Ky. 1977).

CONCLUSION

18 For the foregoing reasons, defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings as to 19 Counts I, II, and III, construed as a motion for summary judgment, is GRANTED. The 20 remaining claims are Count IV, which alleges a violation of Section 10(b) of the Securities
21 Exchange Act of 1934, 15 U.S.C. 78j(b) and Securities and Exchange Commission Rule 10b-5,
22 17 C.F.R. 240.10b-5; Count V, which alleges a violation of Section 20(a) of the 1934 Act, 15
23 U.S.C. 78t; and Count VI, which alleges a violation of Section 36(b) of the Investment
24 Company Act of 1940, 15 U.S.C. 80a-35(b).
